

Dear future AP bio students,

This class is tough. It's a self-paced class and it will teach you how to educate yourself. It may be hard but don't let that discourage you. Study well for the tests by reading your book and taking notes. In my class we made a study group so, find people that you can study with and learn from. Don't stress about the AP exam until about a month before. You can lightly study a month prior and then hard core study leading up to the test. There is a lot of information to learn in one year so don't worry if you can't remember everything. If you do your homework and have decent grades on quizzes and tests you should make an A. It's so important to keep up with the work, especially the learning objectives; procrastination will be your worst enemy. Ask questions!!! If you don't ask anything Mr. Tadlock won't know you need help. You can use youtube, quizlet, amazon books, and college board to help you study. This class was not easy but it was very much worth it.
